Established in 2006, Kathleen Dreier is a passionate and versatile portrait/event photographer based in Tucson, Arizona. With unwavering dedication, Kathleen whole-heartedly serves clients from all communities, fostering an inclusive environment where everyone's unique stories and experiences are celebrated. Specializing in capturing candid moments, she excels at documenting authentic emotions and genuine interactions. Kathleen seamlessly navigates both private and public realms, preserving moments with a unique blend of artistry and storytelling. Her portfolio includes a wide range of client work and personal projects, from short and long-term assignments to select donated services. Kathleen's clients include individuals, families, small businesses, non-profits, and corporations. With a rich background in social work, Kathleen possesses a deep understanding of human dynamics, enabling her to establish quick rapport and connect with individuals from various walks of life. She has honed her craft under the guidance of esteemed photographers like Mary Ellen Mark and has also served as a workshop assistant for Mary Virginia Swanson. Currently, Kathleen is dedicated to her personal social change portrait series titled "Voices of Race," utilizing photography as a powerful tool to shed light on important societal issues and promote compassion and understanding among all people.
